

Walter's raises $150,000 for Children's Hospital

The 2000 Walter's Children's Charity Classic raised $150,000 for a variety of equipment and program needs at Children's Hospital.

Steve and Cathy Kienle, owners of Walter's Mercedes Benz of Riverside, California, love golf and children. The couple has combined these two interests to create a charity event which meets with growing success each year.

Over the past five years, $465,000 has been given to Children's Hospital.

"We deeply appreciate the Kienles," says Reiner Roeske, director of the Children's Hospital Foundation. "Their partnership is truly making a difference in the lives of families with little ones who require medical care. We are thankful for all they have done and are grateful for their continued commitment to children."

Beauty combats cancer 'beast' at Children's Hospital

To build the self-esteem of adolescent and teenage girls with cancer, Children's Hospital recently hosted Beauty and the Cancer Beast. Make-up artist Nicholas Alaniz of Bio Elements gave the young ladies careful instructions on how to apply makeup for a healthy and natural appearance. Sharon Scarbrough, a Medical Center employee who is also a hair designer, styled hairpieces for several young ladies.

"When teens look good on the outside they'll feel better on the inside," says Dinah Evans, child life specialist on Unit 4800. "Teens with cancer tend to hide from other people. Having no hair, looking pale and bloated—you don't want your friends to see you. This is a way to help them get out and feel better about themselves."

Local talent 'brings in the dough' by holding cooking school

More than 500 people attended the second annual "Taste of the Holidays" cooking school held last fall to benefit Children's Hospital.

Sponsored by the Big Hearts for Little Hearts Guild at Loma Linda University Children's Hospital, the sold-out event featured local talent and raised more than $22,000.

Martha Green, owner of Dough'Lectibles bakery, demonstrated several creations and provided samples for everyone.

Derrick Vasquez, president of the American Institute of Floral Designers (AIFD) and president of local candy maker Granlund's Sweet Temptations, showed creative ways to package culinary delights to be given as gifts.

Mr. Vasquez also presented decorating tips for creating a festive buffet.

"We are deeply grateful to Guild members for dedicating their time and energy to host such a successful event," says Reiner Roeske, director of Children's Hospital Foundation.

He continues, "The Guild's active role in helping children is improving the quality of life for children and families in the communities we serve."
